

BE LIKE BEES

CULTURE AT
THE JAMES BARRY-ROBINSON INSTITUTE

KIND COMPETENT FUN

Bees take care of each other using a mix of kindness, competency, and even a touch of fun.

Kindness shows in how they feed one another and work together without conflict.

Their competency is seen in their highly organized roles...nurses tending to young, foragers finding food, and guards protecting the hive.

And fun? Bees use joyful dances, like the waggle dance, to share good news about flower locations.

Through teamwork and connection, bees create a thriving, supportive community where every member matters.
